Reason For Allowance

1. Claims 1-39 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The cited prior art fails to teach the claimed invention for automatic help module is invoked upon the occurrence of a predetermined event during software development. Specifically, claims 1, 15, 22 and 32 are directed to an automatic help module invoked upon a predetermined event and operative to display information associated with the identifier including at least one of a description of the identifier, a description of the type of identifier and a description of syntax associated with the identifier for further entry by the user, an identifier entered by a user when a user is entering section of source code, detecting an event, searching for information on the identifier and display the information directly in response to event without further action by the user of the editor.

The closest prior art (Potts et al US Patent no. 5,627,958 and Hobson et al US Patent no. 5,694,559) teaches processing events and on line help but fails to teach in providing automatic help module invoked upon a predetermined event and operative to display information associated with the identifier including at least one of a description of the identifier, a description of the type of identifier and a description of syntax associated with the identifier for further entry by the user, an identifier entered by a user when a user is entering section of source code, detecting an event, searching for information on the identifier and display the information directly in response to event without further action by the user of the editor. Therefore, the claimed allow user control and reduce complexity with searching help utilities and user do not need to remember a particular attribute during software development process.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
